Impersonating ISP officer charged

Courier staff report

A Grant County man turned himself in at the Jefferson County Jail last week after a warrant was issued for his arrest on charges of impersonating an Indiana State Police trooper.

The investigation by ISP Trooper Nate Adams began in February of this year when a man, later identified as James L. Keirstead, 44, Marion, Indiana, caused a disturbance at the Pizza Hut Restaurant at 510 Clifty Drive, Madison. During the disturbance, Keirstead told employees of the restaurant he was a state trooper.

Multiple employees had additional contact with Keirstead in February and March when he complained about service he received at the business. During each of those conversations, Keirstead again identified himself as a state trooper and threatened to charge employees with various offenses. Employees became suspicious of Keirstead and reported him to the ISP-Versailles Post, prompting the investigation.

With the assistance of Trooper Jeremy Perez of the Peru Post, Trooper Adams found Keirstead at a residence in Marion, Indiana, where he was interviewed.

When the investigation concluded, a warrant was issued for Keirstead on a charge of Impersonation of a Public Servant. Keirstead returned to Jefferson County and turned himself in Tuesday, April 9, on the charge.

Madison man dies in crash on Clifty Drive

Courier staff report

A Madison man died Sunday in a single-vehicle accident at the intersection of Clifty Drive and Meadow Lane.

Jefferson County Sheriff's Department said in a news release Monday that they believe Charles T. Stewart, 74, was southbound on Clifty Drive when, for unknown reasons, he crossed the center and northbound lanes of the road, then traveled off the east edge of the roadway, before the vehicle struck a tree.

Madison Township Fire Department arrived first on scene at about 6:30 p.m. and found Stewart dead. An autopsy was scheduled for Monday afternoon.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office was assisted by the Madison Township Fire Department, Hanover Volunteer Fire Department, The Jefferson County Coroner's Office and Kings Daughter's Hospital EMS.

2 Scottsburg men dead after shootings

Courier staff report

Two Scottsburg men were dead from gunshot wounds early Sunday morning at the Scott Villa Mobile Home Trailer Park in Scottsburg.

The first man shot, Larry D. Marlowe, 34, of Allen Street in Scottsburg, was in the area of Lot 21 in the mobile home park. The body of the second man, Michael Brandon Jones, 29, was found inside the trailer on Lot 21 with what police said appeared to be a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

A news release from Indiana State Police said that at about 11:55 p.m. April 13th, Scottsburg City Police went to the mobile home park in the 800 block of West Lake Road after receiving a call from neighbors advising of a disturbance with possible shots fired and a potential gunshot victim.

Just before midnight, police said, a second call was placed to Scott County authorities from a caller who was identified as Jones. Jones said he was the homeowner at Lot 21 and he had just shot a man he said was trying to gain entry into his residence.

Multiple Indiana State Police units arrived and were told by Scottsburg Police that an unidentified male who knocked on the door of the residence had been shot by the homeowner and was dead. Jones had then locked himself in the trailer and was not responding to attempts to contact him. Officers were also informed that witnesses heard a gunshot from within the trailer after Jones had locked himself inside.

The Indiana State Police Emergency Response team entered the trailer and found Jones dead from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Indiana State Police detectives are the lead officers in this investigation. State police officers were assisted by units from the Scottsburg City Police Department, The Scott County Prosecutor's Office, the Scott County Sheriff's Department and Scott County EMS.

The roller coaster of April

Midway through April, the weather is its usual roller coaster for the spring month. Last week a blue sky and sunlight (left) highlighted the tree blossoms. Rain and thunderstorms rolled through last weekend leaving behind (above) lower temperatures and a gloomy sky. Warmth is forecast to return midweek this week, only to be replaced again by showers and dropping temps, then drier and warmer as the next week unfolds. Purdue study Coal losing ground to gas, renewables

By CHRISTOPHER STEPHENS (Anderson) Herald Bulletin

WEST LAFAYETTE -- As climate change brings hotter summers and warmer winters, Hoosiers will use less energy to heat their homes — but more energy for air-conditioning.

And if current trends continue, a larger percentage of that energy will come from clean-burning natural gas and renewable resources like wind and solar power.

That's according to the latest Indiana Climate Change Impacts Assessment report, "Climate Change and Indiana's Energy Sector," released in February.

The Purdue Climate Change Research Center coordinates the annual report, which draws on research from dozens of Indiana universities and stakeholder groups.

While energy used for heating will fall significantly, the report suggests the increased use of air-conditioning will grow Hoosiers' overall energy consumption.

Rising temperatures will cut Indiana's residential energy consumption by as much as 3% by mid-century. But the energy needs of businesses, which generally rely more on cooling than heating, will increase by as much as 5.5% over that period, a potential overall cost increase of more than $100 million annually, according to the report.

"We will have more need for dealing with warm-weather problems than cold-weather problems," said Jeff Dukes, director of the climate change research center. "If you're an energy company, you'll need to be prepared for these demand shifts, especially as summer needs may stress the state's energy infrastructure."

COMMERCIAL VS. RESIDENTIAL

Assessing heating and cooling needs, the report found that in the commercial sector most energy is devoted to space cooling, rather than space heating or water heating.

When it comes to Hoosier residences, the opposite is true. The highest fraction of climate-sensitive total energy demand is

Lawmakers want school alert system to all 92 counties

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Eric Holcomb is expected to sign a bill that would allow Indiana school districts to seek state money for alert systems to warn students and staff about emergencies.

The bill would permit all 92 counties to request grants from the Indiana Secured School Fund for an alert system similar to one that’s used in northwestern Indiana. The legislation is the “beginning of the most proactive effort that anybody can try to take in order to answer the problems that we’ve been seeing with safety in our schools,” said Rep. Chuck Moseley of Portage.

When a school leader activates the system in Porter County, all area law enforcers at the local, state and federal levels are informed through a mobile phone application, said

Sheriff David Reynolds.

The officers can go directly to a school without waiting to be notified by a 911 operator. They can use their electronic key fob access to the building to promptly counteract a threat, or to help students and educators trying to escape.

“The most important thing when you get there is to go in. Because we know once you go in, it’s not going to take long.”

Reynolds said.

The bill passed unanimously in both chambers of the General Assembly, The Times of Northwest Indiana reported.

“One of the most important aspects of school safety is time, and this bill epitomizes just how quick a notification can be,” said Rep. Greg Steuerwald of Avon.

When the system is triggered, the sheriff’s office also gets access to live video feeds from inside the school building and can use them to direct the response.

“We can monitor every door, every hallway, within a matter of seconds,” Reynolds said. “In all these shootings all these schools have cameras but nobody is watching them, and it takes hours, maybe days, to find out exactly what happened.”

All 75 public, charter and private schools in Porter County are linked to the warning system, the sheriff said.

The Porter County program cost about $80,000. It was covered by local funds and revenue from criminal asset penalties. The state’s Secured School Fund has almost $10 million available for grants to support a statewide program and other safety priorities.

Mismanagement found but no charges at Indiana VA office

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — The inspector general has found mismanagement at the state’s Department of Veterans’ Affairs but insufficient evidence for criminal or ethics charges. The agency’s leader resigned in December after The Indianapolis Star and WRTV-TV questioned its administration of the Military Family Relief Fund, which is supported by fees from specialty veteran license plates. The Indianapolis Star reported Inspector General Lori Torres’ investigative report said agency employees with military service records received agency grants intended for needy veterans and that grant recipients didn’t use funds for the intended purpose. Torres also found a former state senator didn’t account for hours he was paid for under a secretive contract. But her report found insufficient evidence to support charges against current or former employees, in part due to the agency’s shoddy record-keeping.

Mom arrested in death of daughter, 8

INDIANAPOLIS — Police have arrested the mother of an 8-year-old girl who died after her father took her to a fire station with a gunshot wound. Police said Friday that Tiffany White, 38, is charged with neglect of a dependent causing death, unlawful possession of a firearm by a serious violent felon, possession of cocaine and possession of a controlled substance. She’s being held in the Marion County Jail. Police say Kendrielle Brye died March 24 in an Indianapolis hospital. They say the girl did not shoot herself. Police also say they’re still seeking the girl’s 40-year-old father for questioning about the shooting.

Melon linked to US salmonella recalled

INDIANAPOLIS — A recall has been issued for melon products sold in 16 states after being linked to a salmonella outbreak. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said Friday that the recall includes cut watermelon, honeydew and cantaloupe produced by Caito Foods LLC. The fruit has been sold under various brands or labels at Kroger, Walmart, Trader Joe’s, Target and Whole Foods. The affected states are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Health officials advise consumers to check packaging to determine if the melon was distributed by Caito Foods, and, if so, not to eat it. They advise stores to pull the products from shelves. Authorities say 93 people have been sickened, 23 of whom were hospitalized. No deaths have been reported. Salmonella Carrau is described as rare. Symptoms include diarrhea, fever and abdominal cramps.

Authorities recover body in Ohio River

NEW ALBANY — The Indiana Department of Natural Resources said a body was recovered Friday evening in New Albany by the Louisville Fire Department, with assistance from other Kentucky and Indiana first-responders. The body of the unidentified male was found near the junction of the river and Silver Creek. An autopsy will be performed.

IU finishes digitization of 160K specimens

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana University has wrapped up a 5-year project that digitized its collection of more than 160,000 preserved plant specimens. The project launched in 2014 now provides online access to the IU Herbarium’s complete plant collection, including more than 72,000 specimens of Indiana flora. The herbarium’s director, Eric Knox, said digital photographs were obtained of the collection’s plant specimens. Those images and other data are now available to researchers around the globe. Knox calls the Bloomington campus’ digitized collection “a gift to the people of Indiana.” The IU Herbarium was founded in 1885. Its largest single collection is the preserved plant samples of Indiana’s first state forester and his wife, Charles and Stella Deam. Many other specimens hailing from 85 countries joined the collection over the decades.

IU renaming art school after philanthropists

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana University is renaming its art school for two philanthropists who recently made a $20 million gift. The school will be known as the Sidney and Lois Eskenazi School of Art, Architecture + Design in recognition of the Indianapolis couple’s commitment to the university and the arts. The Eskenazis’ $20 million gift is the art school’s largest. It will support student scholarships, academic programs, research and other priorities. The school offers degree programs in 14 areas of study. The money will be used to create an endowment to fund the Lois Eskenazi scholarship for first-year students who are interested in painting.

Noblesville shooter youngest active in ‘18

NOBLESVILLE — A just-released FBI report says a 13-year-old boy who opened fire in a classroom was the youngest suspect in 27 active shooter incidents in the U.S. last year. The FBI’s Active Shooter Incidents in the United States in 2018 Report released this week included the May 25 shooting at Noblesville West Middle School. The FBI defines an active shooter as one or more individuals actively engaged in killing or attempting to kill people in a populated area. Ella Whistler, 13, was shot in the face, neck and upper chest. Science teacher Jason Seaman ended the shooting when he tackled the youth. Seaman was shot three times in the attack. The Associated Press isn’t using the boy’s name because he was charged as a juvenile.

Former Purdue prof leaves $8M to school

HAMMOND — A building at Purdue University Northwest is being named in honor of a former professor who left about $8 million from his estate for student scholarships and professorships. The Purdue University Board of Trustees recently approved the official naming of the Nils K. Nelson Bioscience Innovation Building, which is being built in Hammond, Indiana, and is set to open in fall 2020. Nelson grew up in Farmington, Missouri. The organic chemistry professor retired in 1991 and died in 2017 at age 90. A substantial amount of Nelson’s gift will go to students through the Dr. Nils K. Nelson Memorial Scholarship. Another portion will establish named professorships. The remaining amount went to the bioscience building, which will be the first new academic building on the Hammond campus in nearly 20 years.

New grant to provide coolers to food pantries

FRANKFORT — More than two dozen food pantries are benefiting from a new grant from the state’s Department of Agriculture. Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles is unveiling new coolers that will help the pantries feed the state’s hungry. Quarles’ office said 25 food pantries around the state will benefit from the additional cold storage space. The grants are part of the Kentucky Hunger Initiative, which brings together farmers, charitable organizations, faith groups, community leaders and government officials to look for ways to reduce hunger. Quarles launched the effort in 2016. Quarles is announcing the new grant at an event in Louisville on Monday.

Grant to help clean petroleum leak

LOUISVILLE — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has awarded a nearly $1.2 million grant to help the state clean up petroleum contamination from leaking underground storage tanks. Last fiscal year, officials reported 109 new confirmed discharges, 162 cleanups completed and 636 remaining to be addressed. Officials say Kentucky’s goals for this year are to complete 130 cleanups. EPA officials say the grant is being awarded to the Kentucky Department of Environmental Protection. They say the grant is funded through the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund. Officials say states may use the funds to support staff employees who oversee the cleanup projects or to pay for contractual services to perform cleanup projects. The grant was announced while EPA Administrator Andrew Wheeler visited Kentucky on Friday.

Death of child in pond investigated

“If Indiana came up with $6 million, it would be eligible for $20 million in federal funds”

Conservation Alliance seeks support for state properties

By CAROL KUGLER
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

Ten groups representing the Indiana Conservation Alliance have sent a letter urging Indiana’s legislative leaders to invest in the state’s natural resources — an effort to ensure the General Assembly’s biennial budget dedicates some of its funds to conservation, wildlife work and maintenance of state properties.

“The budget is one of our major priorities,” said Tim Maloney, senior policy director for the Hoosier Environmental Council, which is a part of the conservation alliance.

Maloney believes many legislators are interested in funding the three areas the groups have outlined. The requests are for the President Benjamin Harrison Conservation Trust, for the state’s wildlife action plan with the state fish and wildlife department and for deferred maintenance at all Indiana Department of Natural Resources properties. The letter includes recommendations for funding for each: $20 million, $16 million and $50 million, respectively.

Funding for the Harrison conservation trust is essential because there is a federal matching component that can only be given to states if they first put funds toward conservation efforts. Congress recently approved a landmark natural resources bill that will provide protection for millions of acres of public land and permanently reauthorize the Land and Water Conservation Fund, among other things. The more money a state offers for conservation, the more money the federal government gives as a match.

Already the Harrison Conservation Trust, formerly known as the Indiana Heritage Trust, has not only raised state funds but leveraged $74 million in non-state money, Maloney explained. The trust has protected more than 70,000 acres since 1993. That has happened despite the trust receiving much less money from the state’s general fund since 2009. That decrease was coupled with the loss of money from environmental license plate sales, which declined by more than 50% in the past 20 years.

“If Indiana came up with $6 million, it would be eligible for $20 million in federal funds,” Maloney stated. “Those kind of opportunities are appealing to many legislators.”

The Indiana Wildlife Federation is one of the alliance groups with members talking to legislators about the need for conservation funding increases.

“Conservation funding in the state of Indiana over the last 10 years has been cut and cut and cut, to the point it is no longer able to function,” said Emily Wood, executive director of Indiana Wildlife Federation.

While many people believe that hunting and fishing licenses provide enough money to fund conservation efforts, Wood said that is wrong. In fact, so little money is funneled into the state Department of Natural Resources that the staff and resources used for the state’s wildlife action plan can’t keep up with the research, habitat restoration and work needed to help the state’s threatened and endangered animals.

“Animals are being added to the list and there’s not funding there to protect them,” Wood said.

The third prong of the conservation alliance’s funding concerns centers on the maintenance of state parks and other properties. The conservation alliance has photos on its website that show crumbling stairs and rotting shelter columns at Spring Mill State Park, and a cracked stone chimney at Brown County State Park — just a few examples of facilities in need of repair.

Ironically, Indiana was a national leader in establishing a strong state park system, Maloney said. “We hear good reports about our parks, the quality of areas they provide and the diversity of landscapes. We’ll lose that positive outlook if people can no longer use the facilities or are concerned about using them because they are falling apart.”

Both Wood and Maloney

said Indiana is also losing out in the economic benefits that a well-maintained state park and forest system can provide. While 59% of Indiana residents participate in outdoor recreation each year, that could become a higher percentage and could draw in companies and organizations looking for outdoor recreation before locating businesses in the state. That economic benefit to funding conservation and outdoor recreation is something Maloney believes many state legislators overlook. According to the Outdoor Industry Association’s 2017 survey, Indiana’s economy generates 143,000 jobs directly from outdoor recreation with $15.7 billion in consumer spending.

“We have 17 million visitors each year to our state parks,” Maloney said. “It doesn’t make sense to let those facilities be degraded.”

Providing natural resources with public access will attract people and businesses as those areas provide better quality of life and better health for residents, Wood said. “It’s not an accessory, it’s a need. This is our big push to try and get more funding into the state, because we have literally hit rock-bottom. Our parks and state areas are suffering.”

Motorists pursuing damages from Indiana over I-69 potholes

DALESVILLE, Indiana (AP) — Dozens of drivers have filed tort claims seeking money from the State of Indiana after their cars were damaged while driving on a 15-mile pothole-afflicted section of Interstate 69.

The problematic stretch of highway extends between mile markers 219 in Pendleton and 234 in Daleville, The Star Press reported. Forty claimants are pursuing damages for repairs to brake calipers and rotors; rims and wheels; tires; improper wheel alignment; suspension way bars and other vehicle parts.

Some people making the legal filings said they regularly see drivers replacing tires on the shoulder of that crater-filled section of I-69.

Chris Polo, who drives from Fishers to his job as a chef at Muncie Community Schools, said his car hit a pothole Dec.

14, denting both wheels on the right side. Polo said he couldn’t see the craters to avoid them because it was dark. He filed a tort claim for $378.26.

None of the 20 claimants contacted by newspaper has received a payment thus far. The state has 90 days to approve a claim, which is considered denied if it is not confirmed within that time.

Lester Bush, transportation manager at Fort Wayne Community Schools, said his claim has been in limbo for longer than 90 days.

Bush said he couldn’t avoid hitting a pothole in a construction zone because his car was wedged between a semitrailer on his right and a concrete barricade on the left. Mechanics told him his car needed four new tires. The bill came in at $1,005.58.

The state wrote to Bush denying responsibility for the damage. The liable parties were two contractors employed by the Indiana Department of Transportation to fill the potholes, the letter stated.

Claims can be denied for other reasons, including if they were not submitted in a timely manner, INDOT not having notice of the pothole, and the pothole being so new that there hasn’t been enough time to make repairs, according to the Indiana attorney general’s office.

What constitutes sufficient time is contingent on the weather, the number of complaints, holidays and other circumstances.

The department said it received 193 reports about I-69 between Pendleton and Daleville from October through February, although not all of those were requests to fix potholes.

Thomas Jefferson: his story, our story

By GAYLE R. ROBBINS
Vincennes Sun-Commercial

Thomas Jefferson was born April 13, 1743, near present-day Charlottesville, Virginia, where, no doubt, they are too busy still celebrating Monday night's victory to remember him on this anniversary of his birth.

Jefferson started out on a life-journey that would come to an end shortly after noon on July 4, 1826, the 50th-anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, dying secure in his belief that "John Adams still lives."

Well he was wrong about that, and about many other things as well.

I can't think of any other figure in American history whose reputation has so dramatically fluctuated up and down as has Jefferson's.

His face is on Mount Rushmore while his views on blacks stoke the racist fires of today's alt-right. He's heralded as a great apostle of liberty who yet owned slaves — and, if you believe some, did more than just work them in the fields.

He was devoted to his wife (and after her death, her memory) and his beloved daughters, yet his letters and writings are sprinkled with a full-blown misogyny, unnerving to read in these #MeToo days.

On becoming president Jefferson was vilified from every pulpit in New England for his alleged atheism (parishioners urged to hide their Bibles), yet he was in fact far more versed in the Bible than his critics, and proved to be a more-devout Christian. While he literally cut out all the miracles from his Bible, he held to a creationism (of a sort), convinced that every creature to ever inhabit the earth still existed somewhere — even his "megalonyz" — as God would never allow any of his creations to go extinct.

Thomas Jefferson was definitely a man of his times, but what times they were. The same can be said for most all of the Founding Fathers, with the exception of the extremely malleable Benjamin Franklin, who could quickly fit himself into any time, shape or place.

Jefferson gave us the concept of equality without necessarily defining what he meant by all men being created equal. And what about those other "certain unalienable rights" that he didn't mention? Life, liberty — but what else did he have in mind? And is it just the journey but not the destination to which we have the right when it comes to happiness?

Once realized, Jefferson longed for a return to the "spirit of '76" that had made independence possible, of patriots (republicans and federalists alike) pulling together to build an ideal state, something entirely new under the sun, an empire of liberty.

But what was ideal to Jefferson wasn't necessarily shared by all; independence from Britain was a means to what turned out to be many different ends.

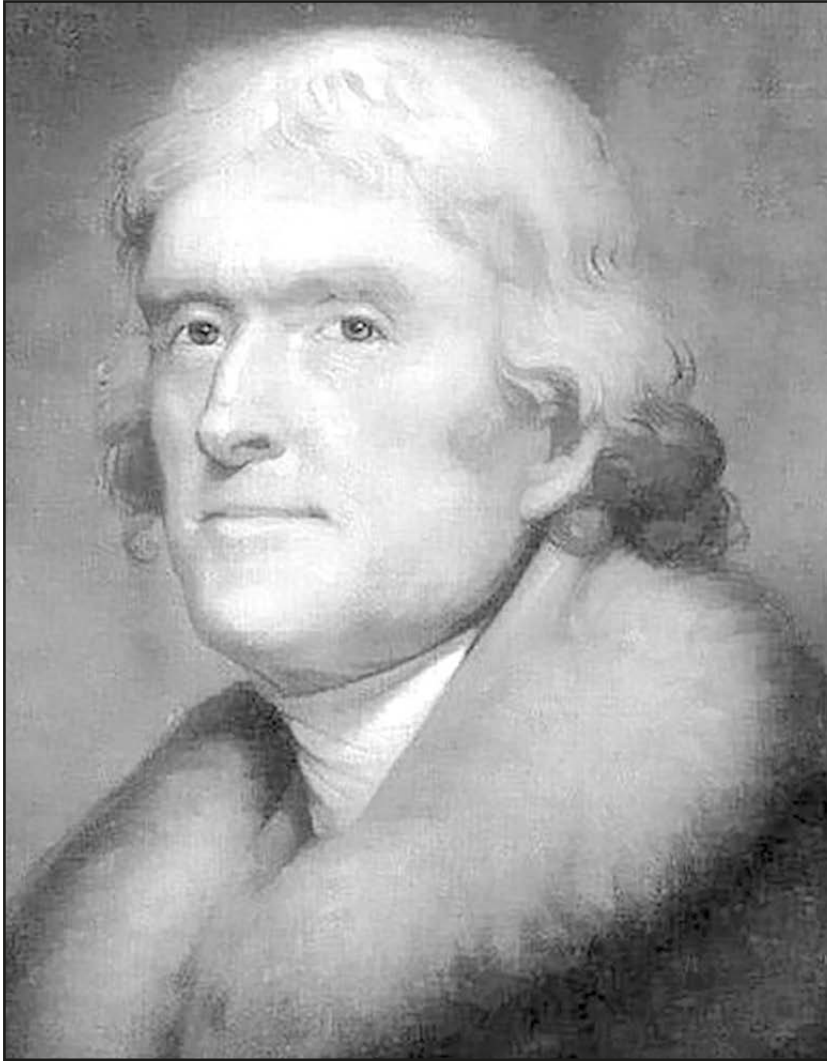

He feared the growing power and influence of the industrial northeast, the lusting after money, speculation of all kinds that he abhorred.

If the moneyed interests continued to grow there would never again be a return to '76, the vision Jefferson had for his country as a whole, to the hundredth and thousandth generation, to be only a dream, the yeoman farmer swept from his land by the financier.

If greed wins, patriotism is lost.

So Jefferson voiced extreme positions — the Kentucky Resolutions with their call for nullification of federal laws, support for the expansion of slavery to add to the number of states serving as a bulwark against the onward rush of the moneyed interests — even to soft-pedaling the Declaration, that expression of the common sense of the matter from the summer of 1776 that became for white's only.

Thomas Jefferson is, in the end, the most-American of the Founders, despite his taste for French cuisine; his flaws are our flaws, his greatness is our greatness, his story our story.

Opportunities to push back 'group-think biases'

By BUD HERRON

"Don't look at anyone, but don't exactly not look at anyone, if you know what I mean," advised our friend at the end of his instructions on how to get to the subway to midtown Manhattan.

Holding clammy hands, Ann and I stepped out on the cracked sidewalk and started west, nonchalantly chatting in an effort to hide our nervousness and in an effort to distract those around us from our white complexions.

The August heat on that day in 1969 was wilting. Few of the apartment buildings along the street had air-conditioning, so, in the steam of late afternoon, the residents of Harlem had moved to the front steps of the buildings or gathered on street corners to try to cool off.

Seeing two pale-skinned 20-somethings strolling down their street did little to lower the temperature. Racial tensions were high. In fact, the first of a series of what the media labeled "race riots" across the nation had begun in his very neighborhood only four years earlier after a white police officer shot and killed an unarmed 15-year-old boy.

Ann and I had been married only six months and were on our first trip to New York City. We had been picked up at the airport by a friend from Indiana who was working in a Harlem drug treatment center. Rather than taking us directly to our downtown hotel, he stopped by the center for "just a minute," but got absorbed into the work and decided it was best for us to take the subway.

Out of the corner of our eyes we could see the shocked faces of the people gathered on the building stoops — the sort of faces you see in old science fiction movies when the humans first get a glimpse of the little green Martians. While we feared catcalls or even physical confrontation, we were just greeted with silent, wide-eyed staring.

Minds all appeared to be asking the question, "Why would two kids who look like they just climbed off a fruit wagon from Pumpkin Center, Indiana, have the nerve to walk down our street in the dimming light of late afternoon?"

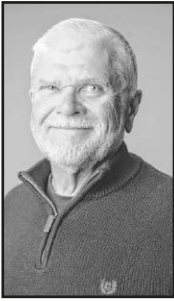

We kept on walking, avoiding eye contact, the streets falling silent in our path — three blocks west, two blocks north, another block west. Then came the dark stairway that led down to the trains. More black faces, now in the dim light of the station platform. Feeling alone. Unprotected. Unsafe. Biases and untested assumptions, built from viewing the world through the lens of being "in the racial majority" since birth, built fear to almost the point of panic.

No one "like us" stood on the crowded platform. And when the train screeched to a halt in front of us and the doors jerked open, we could see no one "like us" in the packed subway car.

Through the first two stops, we stood holding the leather support straps, body to body with strangers from another world. Then two seats opened up directly across the car from each other and we sat down.

No one spoke to us and we spoke to no one. Ann's seat was between two men, one of whom kept coming in and out of some sort of stupor, wobbling back and forth and then leaning into her. Finally, the man fell nearly into her lap and she had to push him upright.

As I started to stand up to go to her aid, at least exchange seats with her, I felt a hand on my arm. My head snapped in the direction of the hand, and I was face-to-face with two brown eyes as a voice above the rattle of the train said, "Let me exchange seats with your wife."

For the rest of the trip we sat watching the man across the car — reading his folded newspaper in one hand as he held up his disoriented fellow passenger with the other.

Eventually the car began to clear out. The disoriented passenger stretched out on a series of vacant seats to sleep. The man who had shown such compassion and kindness got off a couple of stops before our destination. We never thanked him, although I made eye contact as he stood up to leave. I smiled and nodded my head. He returned the gesture and was gone.

Unlike many in our community, state and nation, I have little experience with being the minority, the suspected, the other in my everyday life. Being a white, native-born, male, I have only rarely found myself in such situations. I am generally accepted as the majority, by the majority.

Yet, the experience on that subway car gave me a brief glimpse of what being the minority means, the suspected or even the outcast. While I can never fully understand the feelings of those our society too often rejects just because they look, love, speak or worship "differently," Harlem in 1969 did make a major difference in my worldview.

And that stranger on the subway — who was the majority for a moment in a nation where he was a minority — left the greatest lesson of all: Life gives each of us many chances to overcome our "group-think biases" and treat others the way we want to be treated. We must grasp those opportunities and choose love.

'Tell me everything you can about Mayor Pete'

By CORY HAVENS
South Bend Tribune

Every South Bend resident shares a few common experiences.

Lake-effect snow. Streets teeming with people on Notre Dame home football weekends. Debating time zones with friends and family.

A new bond has emerged over the past few weeks.

"Hey, you're from South Bend. What can you tell me about Mayor Pete?"

If you're like me — and based on conversations with many of you, you are — you've been peppered with questions about South Bend Mayor Pete Buttigieg by every out-of-towner you know. And, several you don't know.

"All the people who used to meet me and say, 'Oh, South Bend... Notre Dame!' now say, 'Oh, Mayor Pete!'" a coworker returning from vacation told me.

I grew up and went to college in central Indiana, moving here as an adult. As a result, my text messages, emails and social media are inundated with old classmates curious about this presidential hopeful who's captured so much buzz early on.

My children were born here. The older of the two fielded so many inquiries from college friends hailing from all around the country, writing one issue-by-issue primer that could be handed out or attached to replies became a prudent time-saver and carpal tunnel preventative.

One of my friends has been talking about our mayor with his friend whose inquisitiveness was stoked by news coverage she's reading in Germany. (No word whether residents of South Bend's German sister city, Arzberg, are experiencing this same phenomenon.)

Just as the inquiries cross international borders, fielding them transcends political loyalties.

I have friends whose support for Buttigieg could not be more ardent. I have friends who have serious complaints with the mayor on one issue or another.

Some of us, for professional or personal reasons, don't publicly share political opinions at all.

No matter where we are on that spectrum, we have all been asked for insights as an insider.

The inquisitive seem to run a somewhat narrower gamut.

From the interested skeptic — "This mayor of yours, is he the real deal or is it just hype?" — to the supplicant pilgrim — "Oh, I just LOVE your mayor!"

It was this latter sort of encounter my wife Michelle and her friends recently experienced.

Michelle was part of a group of friends who took a girls-only vacation to southern California and visited Joshua Tree National Park.

On this trip, they met and talked to a woman who works as a traveling art vendor.

The scene played out, I'm told, something like this:

Lone traveler: I'm from Idaho. Where are you from?

Michelle: Indiana.

Lone traveler: (Pauses and focuses on the women more.)

Where in Indiana?

Michelle's friend: South Bend.

Lone traveler: MAYOR PETE! Tell me everything you can about Mayor Pete. Please!

Hearing some of the women had met the mayor impressed her, but one woman pulling out her phone and showing a selfie Buttigieg had posed for with her sent her over the top.

Lone traveler: You've ACTUALLY spoken to him!

CORY HAVENS

The friends answered as many of her questions as they could. Eventually, they left her there, pondering whether she finally had found what she's looking for.

As a journalist, I'm more accustomed to seeking expert opinions from others. As a profession, we're not as accustomed to being on the other end of an interview.

Jeff Parrott, our reporter who has covered Buttigieg for years feels this acutely. Jeff's been fielding daily requests from national and international media hoping to interview him about what type of mayor Buttigieg has been and how accurate his campaign claims are. He's granted some of the interviews, with the caveat he would not offer his own opinion.

Journalists are also human, too. We're your neighbors. Jeff grew up here. I moved here 24 years ago.

I've never seen this kind of interest in South Bend from afar.

I wasn't here when South Bend's Sydney Pollack won two Oscars in 1985 or when the Notre Dame football team won a national title in 1988. I was here for both of the Notre Dame women's national basketball titles in 2001 and 2018.

None of that remotely compares to this.

As a city resident, I have to think this attention will be good for South Bend.

When a filmmaker wins an Oscar, other artists want to work with them. When a college program has success, other athletes want to come play there.

So I hope this goes. A national audience talking about South Bend seems likely to draw new residents, businesses and opportunities.

Benefiting from those developments could be one more thing for we South Bend residents to have in common.

Dog stolen from Scott County Home

Courier staff report A posting on the Facebook page of the Scott County Sheriff’s office says the office is investigating the theft of a Bullmastiff dog from a residence on South Big Ox Road. The theft occurred April 5, 2019. The dog’s owner told officers that the day before the dog disappeared, a black street bike stopped in the area of their home. The next day they let the dog outside, the owner said, and heard the loud street bike in the area again and then the dog was gone. The dog goes by the name of Kain, weighs about 125 lbs, is tan-colored with a black muzzle and had a camo collar with a gray flea collar. If anyone has any information about this pet, please contact the Scott County Sheriff’s office at 812-752-8400.

Sheriffs buy youth ranch property

Courier staff report BRAZIL – Using private donations and no tax dollars, Indiana sheriffs and deputies last weekend purchased their 62-acre not-for-profit Indiana Sheriffs’ Youth Ranch for future law enforcement officers, at-risk kids, young witnesses and victims of crime. Until now, the 62-acre property had been rented by Youth Ranch leaders for $1 per year from Tony and Sue Ardizzone, business leaders from Indianapolis who share ISYR’s vision of mentoring teens interested in public safety careers, bonding with underprivileged youth and comforting young survivors of crime — including sons, daughters and siblings of fallen first responders. The Ardizzones’s help allowed time for sheriffs and deputies to develop their plans and step up their fundraising.

“Without the generosity and help of the Ardizzone family, this would not have been possible,” said former Marion County Sheriff John Layton, who serves as ISYR board president. “A recent $175,000 gift from cyber security experts Ideanomics of New York and Connecticut completed our sizable down payment. A long-term lease of our on-site K-9 Academy with the Indiana Department of Homeland Security will provide a long-term revenue stream, valued partnership for local public safety and an enhanced experience for our youth leaders.”

Layton said in a news release Monday that cabins and recreation areas are now top priorities for the statewide non-profit. Naming rights are available and range from $10,000 to $1.4 million for various amenities at the $3.4 million nonprofit project.

“Soon, it will be 62 acres of hope, learning and fun for our future public safety officers and other teens we love and care about,” Layton said. “Our cabin designs are being updated, our recreation areas are being staked out and our fundraising and outreach grow every day. It is a huge, privately funded project and we still need everybody’s help to make it as impactful as it can be.”

Layton said teen groups will be on-site this summer for planning sessions, safety discussions and some hiking, archery, fishing, swimming and canoeing. Overnight stays are expected to begin in 2020.

To make a tax-deductible cash or in-kind materials donation, call the Youth Ranch toll-free at 1-833-IN-RANCH.

Drug crack-down

Indy police arrest 9 targeting homeless

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Police say they arrested nine people as part of a crackdown on alleged drug dealing outside an Indianapolis homeless shelter.

Police say the enforcement efforts are part of their continuing work to curb illegal narcotics use, overdoses and drug-dealing in the city.

They say drug dealers have been targeting homeless people near Wheeler Mission Ministries, offering heroin, crack/cocaine and synthetic marijuana.

Officers last Thursday raided several locations and seized guns, a bullet-resistant vest, illegal drugs, drug paraphernalia and cash.

Downtown District Commander Phillip Burton said in a statement that the case began with investigative work around the shelter but expanded to other areas.

He said the team “maintained a high level of collaboration and communication with the other districts and units” to help curb illegal drug sales.

‘Mayor Pete’ joins 2020 Dem race as face of new generation

By SARA BURNETT

SOUTH BEND, Indiana (AP) — Pete Buttigieg, the little-known Indiana mayor who has risen to prominence in the early stages of the 2020 Democratic presidential race, made his official campaign entrance Sunday by claiming the mantle of a youthful generation ready to reshape the country.

“I recognize the audacity of doing this as a Midwestern millennial mayor,” he said to cheers of “Pete, Pete, Pete” from an audience assembled in a former Studebaker auto plant. “More than a little bold, at age 37, to seek the highest office in the land.” In the hours after his announcement, more than $1 million in donations poured in, said Lis Smith, speaking for the campaign.

The South Bend mayor, a Rhodes scholar and Afghanistan War veteran who has been essentially campaigning since January, has joined a dozen-plus rivals vying to take on President Donald Trump.

“The forces of change in our country today are tectonic,” he said. “Forces that help to explain what made this current presidency even possible. That’s why, this time, it’s not just about winning an election — it’s about winning an era.”

Buttigieg will return this week to Iowa and New Hampshire, which hold the nation’s first nominating contests, to campaign as a full-fledged candidate now being taken more seriously.

Over the past few months, Buttigieg has appeared frequently on national TV news and talk shows and developed a strong social media following with his message that the country needs “a new generation of leadership.”

Buttigieg’s poll numbers have climbed. Some polls put him behind only Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, who sought the party’s nomination in 2016, and former Vice President Joe Biden, who has not yet said he’s running.

Buttigieg’s campaign has raised more than $7 million in the first three months of this year, a total eclipsed by Sanders’ leading $18 million but more than Sens. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, Amy Klobuchar of Minnesota and Cory Booker of New Jersey.

“Right now, it’s pretty fun,” Buttigieg told The Associated Press last month while visiting South Carolina, where he was met by larger-than-expected crowds.

His challenge is finding a way to sustain the momentum over the long term and avoiding becoming a “flavor-of-the-month” candidate. Scrutiny of his leadership in South Bend has increased, as has his criticism of Vice President Mike Pence, who was Indiana’s governor when Buttigieg was in his first term as mayor.

Buttigieg would be the first openly gay nominee of a major presidential party; he married his husband, Chasten, last year. He would be the first mayor to go directly to the White House. And he would be the youngest person to become president, turning 39 the day before the next inauguration, on Jan. 20, 2021. Theodore Roosevelt was 42 when he took office, while

John F. Kennedy was 43 and Bill Clinton 46.

The campaign kickoff speech echoed themes that have resonated with voters during Buttigieg’s exploratory phase.

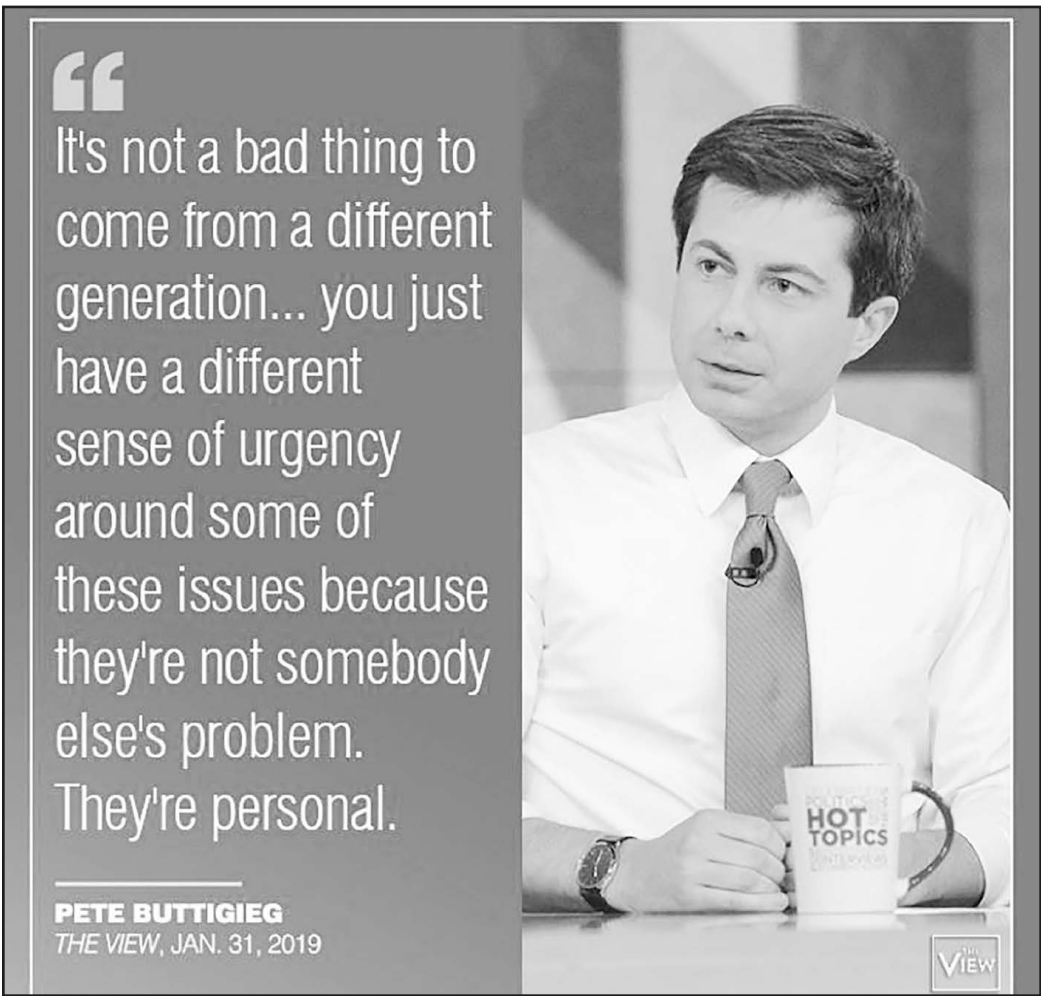

He talks often about how political decisions shape people’s lives, including his own — from serving as a lieutenant in the Navy Reserve in 2014, to being able to marry his husband and to not having to worry about how to pay for his father’s hospital bills after his father’s death this year.

Buttigieg also says the best way for Democrats to defeat Trump may be to nominate a mayor experienced in helping to revive a Midwestern city once described as “dying,” rather than a politician who has spent years “marinating” in Washington.

He has criticized Trump’s campaign slogan, “Make America Great Again,” saying the way to move the country forward is not to look backward or cling to an old way of life.

“There’s a myth being sold to industrial and rural communities: the myth that we can stop the clock and turn it back,” he said. “It comes from people who think the only way to reach communities like ours is through resentment and nostalgia, selling an impossible promise of returning to a bygone era that was never as great as advertised to begin with.”

South Bend, which neighbors the University of Notre Dame, was hit hard by the decline of manufacturing, dating to the 1963 closing of the Studebaker auto plant that costs thousands of residents their jobs.

The hulking, dilapidated factory loomed over the city for much of the past 60 years as what Buttigieg called a daily reminder of South Bend’s city’s past. Partially remodeled, it’s now a mixed-use technology center outside downtown — and the setting for Bettigieg’s announcement.

The South Bend fire marshal’s office said the rally drew over 4,500 inside and 1,500 outside. A steady stream of raindrops fell on speakers on the stage through the leaky roof.

“I like that he’s young,” said Tom Lacy, a 62-year-old retiree who came from Peoria, Illinois, for the event with his wife, Candy, on their 35th wedding anniversary. “He’s so relatable. He doesn’t seem like a politician to me.” Lacy said: “The contrast between him and our current president is unbelievable.”

Nausher Ahmad Sial, a 68-year-old developer from South Bend, said “we need to try new blood.”

Sial, who came to the U.S. from Pakistan 35 years ago, said he has worked with Buttigieg on development projects in the city and described the mayor as a “very honest, very fair guy.”

for space heating, followed by water heating, with space cooling having a relatively smaller demand.

The energy needed to cool retail and light industrial facilities would increase as the state’s annual average temperature rises 5 to 6 degrees by 2050 and 6 to 10 degrees by 2100, according to the report.

Extreme heat is also projected to become more frequent and intense.

For instance, in southern Indiana, the daily high temperature is expected to exceed 95 degrees during 50 to 89 days per year by late century. The southern third of the state historically has averaged about seven extremely hot days per year.

Winters, too, will change, with similar average temperature increases meaning less energy will be used on heaters.

By 2080, heating demand is expected to fall by 13 to 28% per capita in the state’s 15 largest cities. Meanwhile, cooling demand is expected to rise from 32 to 40% by the same year.

Energy needs spurred by extreme heat will sometimes challenge the capacity of power plants, transmission lines and substations, potentially causing power disruptions.

FLOODING, DROUGHT

Wild variations in precipitation could also cause more spring flooding and summer drought, affecting coal delivered by barges and threatening cooling processes at power plants.

Based on industry-side projections, and even without taking into account probable lobbying by environmental groups, energy producers of the future will be more likely to use low- or no-carbon emitting processes, according to the report’s lead author, Purdue Professor Leigh Raymond.

“Coal is basically being priced out of the market,” said Raymond, a founding member and associate director of the climate change research center. “Natural gas has already cut coal significantly based on price, and renewables have become much cheaper recently.”

Currently, Indiana gets about 73% of its energy from burning coal, 18% from natural gas, 5% from wind and the rest from alternative sources including other gases, hydroelectric generators, solar and biomass.

“If those trends continue, which the highest-quality predictions seem to indicate, then coal will likely disappear from the energy mix,” Raymond said.

He projects renewable energy consumption to grow dramatically by the end of the century, with the balance between wind and solar determined by future infrastructure costs.

Proposed abortion clinic injunction opposed

SOUTH BEND, Indiana (AP) — Indiana is asking a federal judge to rule against a Texas-based nonprofit that wants to open a South Bend abortion clinic. The group is asking a judge to block Indiana’s licensing rules so that it can open a clinic to perform medication-induced abortions. Whole Woman’s Health Alliance first applied for a license in October 2017. Indiana’s attorney general’s office filed documents Monday asking the judge to reject the group’s bid for a preliminary injunction. The filing said Indiana’s “interests in enforcement outweigh the harms Whole Woman’s Health might suffer pending a final decision on the merits.” An Indiana administrative panel rejected the nonprofit’s request to open a South Bend clinic last year.

Cubs win, Rebels' Mefford low-medalist at St. Anne's

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Jefferson County golfers proved to be the class of the field by winning both individual and team honors at the Jennings County Invitational played at St. Annes Golf Course in North Vernon on Saturday.

Southwestern's Hunter Mefford, who has signed to play for Purdue-Fort Wayne, fired an impressive three-under 69 to take low-medalist honors while Madison had three golfers shoot 80 or lower to combine for a 323 that was first among the 10-team field.

Madison's score was seven strokes better than runners-up Whiteland, Greensburg and Columbus East, who each shot 330. Seymour carded a 333 and Jennings County a 335 followed by Trinity Lutheran 347, Austin 362, Shelbyville 377, Jennings County "B"

Mefford

Madison's Nate Hamby, Luke Ommen, Trent Jamieson, Landon McDowell and Drew Barron.

398, Seymour "B" 406 and South Dearborn 448. Shawe played but did not field a full team.

Trent Jamieson led the Cubs with a 76 while Drew Barron had a 77, Luke Ommen an 80 and Nate Hamby a 90. Landon McDowell shot a 99 in a non-scoring round.

Although Southwestern's 336 was only good for seventh overall, the Rebels were right in the mix with the top schools. Austin Kramer's 76 was fifth-best in the field while Trenton Hadley shot an 87, Camden Ashby a 104 and Steven Stillwell a non-scoring 120.

"Hunter had a great day. To shoot two-under par on that course is pretty impressive in itself but to do it as the defending champion is even more impressive. He had a really good day," Southwestern coach David Bright said. "Austin played well coming in with a five-over 76 that was good enough for fifth in a pretty strong field. As a team we are getting better, dropping our score each week and really starting to knock on the door of the potential this team has. We have a few places to drop some more strokes and then we will see just how low we can go. I think breaking 320 is a real possibility for these kids on the right day."

Unable to field a complete team, Shawe was led by Chandler Cole with a 96 while Jack Grote had a 108 and Trenton Purvis a 121.

Madison and Southwestern were both in action Monday with Madison hosting Floyd Central at Sunrise Golf Course and Southwestern playing Milan, South Ripley and Jac-Cen-Del at North Branch. Shawe's plays Rising Sun and South Dearborn today at The Links at Rising Star Casino Resort.

O'Banion re-breaks Cubs' 400 mark at Sprinter's Showcase

Madison sprinter Daunte O'Banion suffered his first loss of the season Saturday in the 400-meter dash but the Madison senior lowered his school record in the event and came away with some valuable information for the rest of the 2019 campaign.

O'Banion squared off against Oak Hill junior Tahj Johnson — last year's state runner-up and the favorite to win the title this year — at the Sprinter's Showcase at Lafayette Jefferson High School.

The two runners were neck-and-neck through 300 meters when Johnson was finally able to gain some separation on O'Banion. The Cub record holder finished the race with a new school record of 49.49 — he's lowered the mark every time he's run the event this spring — just two strides back.

"This is why I took him and a few of the other guys to this meet. To let them see where they stand," Madison coach Scott Holcroft said. "Daunte was right there with him and this just makes him more hungry as we go through the season."

In addition to his performance in the 400, O'Banion was also 10th in the 100-meter dash in 11.56.

Several other Cubs made the trip north with Blair Holt, Nick Center and Jack Kelsey joining O'Banion in the 1600 relay where they placed eighth in 3:44.74. Bryce Foy was 19th in the 200 dash in 24.23 and 23rd in the 100 dash in 11.88.

"This was a great meet for these guys. They were running against the best in the state," Holcroft said. "Bryce ran some great times tonight. The 4x400 ran a great time with the competition they were up against. These guys will not see this level until state. That is why we took them to this meet."

Madison returns to action Tuesday at Seymour.

Madison softball bounces back to score 26 runs in DH sweep

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's softball pounded out 39 hits and scored 26 runs in a doubleheader sweep of Oldenburg Academy at home on Saturday.

The Cubs rolled to a 12-3 win in the opener scored a 14-4 win in six innings in game two after falling to Batesville 9-3 just a night earlier.

"I was really proud of our girls for bouncing back today. We were able to hit with runners in scoring position today," Madison coach Tony Ralston said. "I can see us start to have confidence at the plate. We need to build on that going into next week."

Madison took a 5-1 lead into the fourth inning of the opener when the Cubs exploded for seven runs to blow open the game.

Bailee Schmidt went 4-for-4 with two doubles and four RBIs to lead Madison at the plate while Abby Moore was 3-for-4 with a double and two RBIs. Kennedy Stidham was 2-for-3 with a triple and an RBI, Emma Cammack was 2-for-4 with double and an RBI, Bailey Dyer and Morgan Cahall each had two hits and drove in a run, Hannah Uhl had a hit and scored twice, Clara McCulley had a hit and an RBI and Keara Eder scored three runs.

Moore gave up 13 hits in seven innings in the circle but only three runs to pick up the win. She struck out three and walked one.

Madison's offense was even more potent in game two with the Cubs collecting 22 hits, seven of which went for extra bases including a towering home run over the batter's eye in center field by Emma Cammack for her second blast in as many days.

Dyer was 4-for-5 with a double and scored four runs while Cammack was 3-for-4 with the home run, a double, four RBIs and three runs scored. Uhl was 3-for-4 with two doubles and three RBIs, Stidham was 3-for-4 with a double, a triple and an RBI, Moore was 3-for-5 with a run and an RBI, Paige Young and Jalyn Honaker each had two hits, and Cahall and Schmidt each collected a hit.

Schmidt got the win in the circle after allowing four runs on 11 hits in six innings with one strikeout.

Madison had out-hit and out-pitched Batesville Friday only to lose 9-3 because the Cubs committed five fielding errors and stranded a dozen runners on base.

Madison smacked 12 hits to Batesville's 10 — including two home runs to one by the Bulldogs — as Madison pitchers Schmidt and Moore combined to strike out five while walking just two as Batesville's Paige Oldham struck out just three while walking four.

But Oldham and the Dogs left town with the easy win because Madison failed to deliver the clutch hit time-after-time while the Cubs' defense bungled enough plays early to stretch Batesville's fewer hits into a 9-0 lead.

Trailing 9-0, Madison scored its runs late with a leadoff solo home run by Emma Cammack in the bottom of the fifth to go with a two-out single by Paige Young and an RBI double by Morgan Cahall before Bailey Dyer capped the Cubs scoring with another solo homer in the sixth.

"It was frustrating because I thought from the fourth inning on we played pretty well. I thought Schmidt came in to start the game and pitched well. We just weren't ready to field the ball the first part of the game and wasn't mentally into it and it cost us," Madison coach Tony Ralston said. "It cost us at the plate and it cost us in the field. The girls understand that they've got to be prepared every inning, every game for the whole game — not half the game."

"Our offense is starting to come around. It's just we got to get the hits when there's runners on," Ralston added. "We had two nice home runs today but they were solos. I hate to sound like this but that was disappointing. I need those with bases loaded. And the girls know that."

Madison (3-7) was to play at New Washington Monday.

Rebs win Ralston's 100th

Leading 7-1, Southwestern softball pushed across four runs in the sixth inning to close out Clarksville early in an 11-1 win in Hanover — the 100th career coaching win for Rebels head coach Duane Ralston.

The Generals managed just three hits in the game — all singles — and scored their only run in their final at-bat when a walk and an error helped pushed across an unearned run to break up a shutout by Rebels pitcher Lakyn Wilson.

Wilson struck out 10 and walked three while twirling the three-hitter to get the win.

Meanwhile, Southwestern produced back-to-back four-run innings in the fifth and sixth after scoring a run in the second and two in the third.

The Rebels scored 11 runs on 10 hits — four for extra bases — and two walks with eight RBIs.

Abby Fulton, Abby Ralston, and Wilson all had multiple hits for Southwestern including a double each by Ralston and Wilson and a triple by Fulton. Morgan Mahoney also had a double and Olivia Bruce and Trinity McLain drove in two runs each.

Southwestern (4-4) was to host South Ripley Monday.

Carroll dealt 1st loss 2-0

Shut down for the first time all season, previously unbeaten Carroll County softball managed just one hit and three total base-runners in a 2-0 loss at Campbell County on Saturday.

Campbell County pitcher Jessica Walsh went the distance to get the win, tossing a one-hitter and striking out 11 while also helping her cause by hitting a home run in the bottom of the sixth inning for the final margin.

Walsh, a senior, walked Bailey Mefford to open the game before giving up a one out single to center field by Allie Beach in the fourth and a walk by Beach to open the seventh. The Camels' defense did the rest by not allowing a Carroll runner to advance beyond first base.

The Camels (11-1) managed just three hits off Carroll starter Andrea Searcy with back-to-back doubles by Becca Mitchell and Bella Bastin producing what was the game-winning run in the bottom of the fourth inning. Bastin led Campbell County with a 2-for-3 day at the plate and an RBI. Taylor Watson had a single for the Camels' final hit.

Other than hits, Searcy was easily her counterpart's equal on the circle. The Carroll junior (9-1) struck out 13 and walked none while taking her first loss of the season.

Carroll (9-1) hosts Walton-Verona today.

Trimble ends first skid

Trimble County softball bounced back from its first losses of the season by winning both games of a doubleheader with Grant County and Cooper on Saturday in Dry Ridge, Kentucky.

The Raiders, losers of two straight after winning their first eight games of the season, defeated Cooper 8-3 in Saturday's first game and Grant 10-8 in the second to cap a week in which the Raiders lost 8-3 to Walton-Verona in the All "A" Classic regional tourney and 10-9 at Simon Kenton.

Eighth grader Emma Ginn led the win over Cooper going 4-for-4 with three singles, a home run and four RBIs while Kaila Lira was 1-for-2 with an RBI and two runs scored, McKenna Ritchie was 1-for-3 with a run scored, Kaylee Payton had a single and Shelby Wilcoxson scored two runs.

Abby Ponder picked up the win by scattering three runs — one earned — on four hits and a walk while striking out 10.

Both Ponder and Ritchie belted home runs in the win over Grant while Ginn, Ritchie and Wilcoxson smacked doubles as Trimble out-hit the Braves 15-10 but made four errors to Grants' two to keep the game close.

The Raiders used a five-run fifth inning — including Ritchie's three-run homer to center field — to erase a 6-3 deficit and never trail again. Ponder's home run had come on a solo shot to center leading off the third inning.

Ritchie and Haley Howard were both 3-for-4 for Trimble with Howard scoring three runs and Ritchie driving in three. Parton was 2-for-3 with an RBI, Ginn was 2-for-4 with a run scored and Wilcoxson was 2-for-5 with an RBI. Rachel Liter was 1-for-3 with a runs scored.

Ponder pitched the first five innings to pick up the win, allowing six runs — four earned — on seven hits and two walks while striking out eight. Wilcoxson came on in the sixth and allowed two runs — both earned — on three hits.

Trimble was to play at North Oldham Monday.

Moms, dads, grandparents, friends and many others joined the Easter Bunny to enjoy the annual Brunch with the Bunny to benefit Jane's Kids on Saturday, April 13, at The Livery Stable in downtown Madison. Jane's Kids is a non-profit organization co-founded in 2014 by former Madison Courier Publisher Jane Jacobs and Clearinghouse of Jefferson County volunteer Sara Stetson. Jane's Kids helps local low-income families have access to safe, quality summer programming for their children. This fund can help with the cost of summer programming. In previous years, the fund has helped pay for summer programming at Girls Inc. and Lide White Boys and Girls Clubs; summer t-ball and football leagues; Lego, history and theater camps offered by community organizations; and pool passes and swim lessons offered by the city. To apply for assistance through "Jane's Kids," a family must meet all of the sponsoring organization's program requirements and complete an application that shows that the family is in need. Only children living in Jefferson County are eligible. To apply, contact the Clearinghouse at 100 E. Second Street, Suite E, Madison, or call (812) 273-9270.

Invitations causing conflic

Dear Annie: I am feeling so conflicted. My niece, "Melanie," is getting married in June. Melanie is paying for her own wedding, with a little from her mom. She's 31 now and was 5 when her parents (my brother and his wife) divorced.

Long story short, things are acrimonious between Melanie and her dad, and she's decided not to invite him to the wedding. Her dad's children from another marriage, her half-sister (who she hasn't met yet) and half-brother, are not invited either. She says that it would be awkward for them to be there without their father, and they are not old enough to drive. Everyone else on our side of the family is invited.

I agree with her that my brother would not just drop his kids off and leave; he would make a scene. I get both sides, but hate that I am in between. My brother does not know he will not be invited. She just isn't telling him. He asks me, "Did you get an invite?" Luckily, I have not yet, so I haven't had to lie. Am I wrong that she has the right not to invite him, but she needs to call and tell him? — In Between

Dear In Between: You're not wrong, but that's beside the point. Your niece is going to make her own decisions, and that's the long and short of it. I know that you want to help, but often when we find ourselves trying to mediate disagreements between two loved ones, we end up playing a role in the drama ourselves. It's time for you to bow out.

Dear Annie: I am writing in response to the letter from Parental Pawn, whose controlling parents were insisting the writer go to graduate school. In general, people tend to resist change. Have you read about abused wives who refuse to leave? We seem to have an innate fear of the unknown.

Here is my point: I have observed, many times, people finally managing to free themselves from abusive situations only to do things, consciously or unconsciously, that send them back into the situation they were familiar with, even if that situation was extremely uncomfortable. For example, habitual tardiness or other things that cause them to lose the job that allows them financial independence. The writer mentions having heard that graduate school will be virtually impossible to succeed at if you're not fully committed. I would like to warn the writer, once he or she does manage to achieve independence, to be fully committed to being independent. Please keep your guard up against behaviors that would necessitate returning to the parents' control. And believe me, the parents will use every trick in the book to try to make sure they don't lose control of their child, never mind that the child is actually an adult. — Retired Social Worker Dear Retired Social Worker: I'm printing your letter because your professional insights are on the mark. Too often we bring the traps of our past with us, whether we want to or not. Therapy offers a place where we can leave them behind.

HOW TO PLAY:

Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the numbers 1 through 9 without repetition.

BRIDGE

WITH GOOD SHAPE, TRY TO DECLARE

To start today, look only at the North hand in the diagram. North-South are vulnerable. East opens two spades, South passes, and West raises to four spades. What should North do, if anything?

Yesterday, East (as he is sitting today) went down two in four spades after diamond to the ace, diamond ruff, club ruff, diamond ruff, club ruff. But that was a poor profit for North-South.

At the other table, North knew that although he had only 8 high-card points, his great distribution was worth a lot. Despite the unfavorable vulnerability, he intervened with four no-trump. This showed two five-card or longer suits.

After East passed, South advanced with five clubs, West doubled, North bid five diamonds, announcing the red suits, South gave preference to five hearts, and West doubled again. What did West lead?

West led a trump. It was an excellent choice, but the play went: heart to the nine, club ruff, diamond ace, diamond ruff, club ruff, diamond ruff, club ruff, diamond ruff, club jack. When West ruffed, declarer overruffed on the board, drew West's last trump with the heart ace and cashed the diamond eight to make the contract.

West shook his head, muttering about his 20-count. But as Albert Dormer, one of the best bridge writers ever, pointed out: "When three players are bidding vigorously, the fourth player with a strong balanced hand should proceed with caution: the others may all have freak distributions. It will often be better to support partner than to double for penalty."
